

Dr. Fisher Develops Self-Concept Test

Dr. John K. Fisher, associate dean of Academic Affairs, has recently developed a test of self-concept titled SELF-CONCEPT AS A LEARNER (Elementary SCAL). This is an outgrowth of a scale SELF-CONCEPT AS A LEARNER (Secondary) developed by Dr. Fisher and Dr. Walter B. Waetjen, vice-president for Administration at the University of Maryland.

Both SCAL elementary and secondary scales attempt to assess four factors associated with self-image as a learner. These factors are MOTIVATION, TASK ORIENTATION, PROBLEM SOLVING ABILITY, and CLASS MEMBERSHIP. Each factor is evaluated in terms of positive and negative statements as judged by the way an adequate learner would respond.

Dr. Fisher has used the above scale in his research at the University of Maryland, Pennsylvania State University and Edinboro State College. The validity and reliability of the scale has not been established, but Dr. Fisher has found that it agrees rather closely with the CALIFORNIA TEST OF PERSONALITY.

Dr. Fisher has granted permission to educational researchers from 31 states to use the scale in their work. In addition, permission has been given to use the scale to: 24 universities and colleges, 4 state departments of education and 33 public school systems. SELF-CONCEPT AS A LEARNER (Elementary) is listed in the following publications: IMPROVING EDUCATIONAL ASSESSMENT: AN INVENTORY OF MEASURES OF AFFECTIVE BEHAVIOR (National Education Association and Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development: 1970), RESEARCH IN EDUCATION (Educational Resources Information Center: 1971), HEAD START TEST COLLECTION (Educational Testing Service: 1971).

Dr. John Karl Fisher is the son of Mrs. John Fisher of Andover and received his Bachelor of Arts Degree in 1952 and his Master's Degree in 1953 from Alfred University and his Doctor Degree in 1964 from the University of Maryland.
