

Grocery Gems & Goodies

by Phil Fitch

Well Folks, we weren't too far off on our sugar predictions were we? Sugar prices are still dropping in some of the Super Markets ranging anywhere from 50c up to $1 a bag — although for how long, time alone will tell.

In the meat-line beef prices are still low and are even lower on certain special items. Also, there are scattered specials on pork items as well as on chicken.

The iceberg lettuce market is now holding steady and should remain this way for several more weeks.

However, the biggest buy of the week is in the bulk citrus department with both Florida oranges and grapefruit at the lowest prices of the season.

All in all, it looks now as though it is very favorable for lower food prices for the next few months. But, we still just have to wait and see.
