Grocery Gems & Goodies

by Phil Fitch

Well Folks, weather-wise, the news may be getting better as a few warm days are predicted towards the end of the week. However, grocery-wise the outlook is rather bleak.

The entire market in the meat line is taking a sharp increase and it is predicted that it will remain that way all summer. Thus the only way to beat prices is to take advantage of weekly specials and build your meals around them.

In the grocery line, about the only thing that is gradually declining is sugar as we had predicted however, as canning season grows near and the demand is greater — no one knows just what will happen.

This week a couple of "hot specials" in the meat line offer several different possibilities for varied meals. With wieners on special with a 12-oz. pkg. going for 49c for a cooked dish you could have wieners & sauerkraut or, on a nice day, charcoal the hot dogs and have a tasty potato salad for a picnic dinner while old potatoes are plentiful.

And, with semi-boneless cooked hams selling for 89c per pound, this offers many possibilities — scalloped potatoes; ham & beeks (if you like those fragrant little dainties); just plain baked ham with anything; and for left-overs, ham patties, ham hash — or even ham-n-cabbage, or ham salad. Doesn't that make your mouth water?
