Editorial

by Diane Bliss

Did you hear the latest gossip? If so, let's hope it stopped with you and that contagious disease of the mouth was killed on the spot. Rumors are one great fault in our school and community and, with the size of both as small as they are, these things tend to spread like wild fire. In fact, they sometimes get as hot as fire, too.

Hearsay can be a dangerous thing to deal with. Unless the story comes from the parties involved directly, it's really not worth repeating. And why should anyone want to repeat it anyway? There are times when a person confides in another with the intentions of it traveling no farther than to that person. Nothing can destroy trust as fast as a story blown out of proportion that was told in the strictest confidence to a friend.

People are entitled to a certain degree of privacy and this privacy is directly invaded when some exotic, exaggerated story somehow gets back to that person's ears. There are few things as aggravating as having to listen to a group whispering this and that about "so-and-so" doing something or other with "what-his-face" when you know perfectly well the facts have been folded, bent, and mutilated. Then you want to say, "No, that's not how it was," only you have your story based on as little concrete evidence as they. Even if the right, true to fact story was presented, people tend to hear only the parts they want to hear and add their own finishing touches.

What can we do to stop this flow of slander and misinterpretations? It gets out of hand and has hurt too many innocent people. It will hurt more people and ruin more relationships yet, if it isn't stopped somewhere. The best place to start is with yourself. Just don't listen, or if you listen don't spread it. Then get brave and daring by hitting the source before the rumors get too involved. Don't be afraid to turn it off by walking away or even telling them you don't want to hear and changing the subject. Make it stop with you. If no one listens, rumors can't be spread, and if rumors aren't spread by word of mouth rumors don't survive and neither does the harm they bring.

NFL Bicentennial Essay Contest

by Diane Bliss

Interested in a little money for your college education? If you're between the ages of 14 and 18, you have an opportunity to win up to a $10,000 scholarship plus an expense-paid trip to Miami, Florida for Super Bowl X. What's the story? Read on.

The National Football League is sponsoring the essay contest on the topic of "The NFL's Role in American History." Each essay of 500 to 750 words will be judged on the sincerity and content by the NFL Bicentennial Scholarship Committee and Marden-Kane, Inc. The essays will then be placed in the Hall of Fame for permanent display.

Even if you don't win the $10,000 scholarship, there is also a $5,000 scholarship and ten $1,000 scholarships will be awarded upon the winner's entrance to college. If you're interested, see Mrs. Burger for details and entrance rules and then get writing. Entries must be postmarked no later than November 15, 1975. This could be your contribution to America's Bicentennial.

Goblins Galore

by Nancy Stephens

It's almost Hallowe'en, and time for witches and goblins to be out and about. There will be many witches, goblins and other scary creatures, marching along the halls here at ACS in another week or so.

Every year we have a Hallowe'en Parade for grades, Kindergarten thru Sixth and we thought it would be interesting to find out what the students think about this. Some of the students I interviewed were David Baker, Linda Gavin, Michelle Davis, Amy Winslow, Troy O'Hara, Danny Garner, Lori Herr, Marie Perry, Shannon Davis and Doug Miller. They told me they were going to wear various costumes such as: ghosts, witches, skeletons, Franksteins, devils and even Batman and Fred Flintstone.

While I was talking to these youngsters I thought maybe I was already dressed for Hallowe'en, because they were afraid to talk at first and I was beginning to feel like some creature from Outer Space. I finally did get out of them that they liked the idea of dressing up and having parties. One little girl said that the thing she liked best was seeing all the costumes and being able to yell and scream in School. All the kids agreed that the parade sounded like a lot of fun and I'm sure that it will be.

Mansfield State College, Mansfield, Pennsylvania, on Saturday, October 18 presented a workshop for all interested music teachers. The workshop-lecture was called "Musical Understanding and Skills through the use of the Kodaly Method." It was conducted by Dr. Arpad Doro, who is professor of Music and director of choral activities at the University of South Carolina. He graduated from the Royal Franz Liszt Conservatory of Music in Budapest, Hungary, and received his doctorate from Columbia University. He has been conductor of the Columbia, South Carolina Philharmonic Orchestra and is co-author of "Sight and Sound, Music Education for All Ages."

Andover Central School was represented by both Mrs. Nancy Potter and Mrs. Lois Bover. Although they both had attended similar workshops, they felt it was a good review for the arrangement of their music students.

Conservation Day

by Kal Shaw

On October 1, the sixth graders at Andover had the privilege to attend a special Conservation Day in Belmont at which they attended 12 sessions during the day. This program was set up to make the sixth graders aware of what is going on in the Environment around them. It was an awareness program.

Some of the various sessions set up were: Back-packing, form practice, law enforcement, firearm safety, soil conservation, wildlife management, fire control, and maple syrup production.

I asked some of the sixth graders what they thought of it and I received some good replies. Most of the students were interested in the wildlife area. A couple of the instructors talked a little bit above their heads but for the most part they enjoyed the whole day. They are now engaged in a County Essay Contest on their Conservation Day. It will be judged for originality and what they observed. They are doing these essays for Fire Prevention Week.

SOCCER

On Friday, the Panthers traveled to Whitesville to face the improved Whitesville team. The soaked field held down the high scoring Andover team to 4 - 0 over Whitesville. The goals were scored by Gary Barden with two, Jay MacMichael and Tim Mead. The game was dominated by Andover, holding Whitesville to 5 shots on goal. This makes a record of 11 - 0, with one game of the regular season, vs Richburg. Then the North-South Playoff, against either Angelica or Friendship.

CROSS COUNTRY

Last Tuesday, Andover held its second home meet, against Alfred-Almond and Cuba. The meet went well but with three of the top six out with injuries, the cause was almost hopeless. With a fine effort from the team they almost pulled it out. John Davis came in third with a good kick in the end. Brett Grossman, Brian Weber, Lenny Grossman all ran well, but we lost to both Cuoa and Alfred-Almond.

Cub News

 Second game: Bucks vs Celtics
 Come and watch them play!

Keen Those Labels

Coming

With nine weeks to go, 2477 Campbell's Soup and Bean Labels have to be collected so a Bell and Howell Autoload Filmstrip Projector may be purchased. The goal is 7900 or more. If extra labels are turned in, additional merchandise may be added. As of yet 6493 have been saved.

The first week Mrs. Peterson's class collected the total of 500. Last week Mr. Young's homeroom totaled 469. Please try to save those labels and turn them in to someone on the Library Council or Mrs. Cary.

Can You Guess?

What's all the buzz about around the halls of ACS? Have all the Juniors been plagued with a hand disease. Why does everyone want to see their hands?

I'll ask the Juniors! The Juniors are proud to announce their new class rings which were delivered by Balfor Company at 9 o'clock the 9th of September. They are bouncing and beautiful. The Juniors have not passed out any class yet.

Congratulations! I know you've waited a long time for this occasion.

The ACS girls' soccer team, with a league record of 7-3-1 and an overall record of 9-3-1, will play their last league game of the season against Belmont on the home field, Thursday, the 23rd. They now hold a solid third place in the league, with Alfred-Almond in the lead and Belmont holding down second place. This position may mean a playoff game with the third place team from the North to determine a Sectional standing.

The County Championship game will be played on Saturday, the 25th, and if our girls make the Sectionals, their game will be held within the next week (27th).

The results of the most recent game with Scio, were a final score of 3 - 1, Andover over Scio. At the whistle ending regular game length, the score was tied one to one with a goal by Diane Bliss. Going into overtime, Teresa Joyce broke the tie and Brenda Vossburg scored another on a direct kick in the second overtime.

The Volleyball season will open in approximately two weeks. Let's wish our Volleyball Team as much luck as the Soccer Team. Wait a minute — luck had nothing to do with it!

Senior Interview

by Karen Hall

Have you noticed a tough looking guy walking around the halls of ACS, wearing a Led Zeppelin shirt, levis and desert boots?

Have you ever wondered who this person could be?

October 27, 1958 you might find. If you search the files back to out, but why go to all the trouble, just ask his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Barden.

His name is Gary Briggs Barden. He has two sisters, Cindy 19 and Beth 14.

Gary has been very active in ACS sports, participating in soccer three years, basketball four years, baseball four years, swimming one year and track one year.

He has been on the Student Council three years. He is majoring in math and science and he plans to attend college.

Success and happiness to you always, Gary.
