"Inside The State Capital"

By James L. Emery

10/27/75 — One of the most disturbing incidents that has occurred in my public life was the recent indictment of a State Trooper for "doing his job" at Attica Prison during the riots of 1971.

We have heard the cries from the far left, the liberals and the "do-gooders", chastising our law enforcement officers. Many of the State's more liberal newspapers, including the two Gannett papers in Rochester, have been urging the indictment of police or correction officers at the 1971 Attica rebellion. It is apparent that these cries have reached someone in high public office and now that person is directing the indictment of the State Trooper. But let's keep one thing in mind — an indictment is an accusation. It should not in any way be construed as a guilty verdict.

As most of you know, I arrived at Attica Prison shortly after the riot began and stayed there continuously until the prison was retaken by authorities. I was one of several who were inside the prison trying to resolve the problems. I spoke with the leaders of the revolt, with prison authorities, and with state officials at the scene. I personally saw the anguish displayed by Commissioner Oswald as he tried vainly to bring the riot to an end. I watched him make the decision to retake the prison after all negotiations broke down including last minute personal appeals. It was not an easy decision to make — it was not an easy assignment for the State Police, sheriff's deputies, National Guardsmen and corrections officers to carry out. But it was their job, their duty, as law enforcement officers to carry out their oath of office. Let no one mistake the issue — it was not the police or corrections officers who broke the law. Convicted felons had killed a corrections officer, were holding several more hostages and were breaking the law.

Indicting or accusing a police officer for doing his job is a dark day for our society. If a bank robber is holding a bank teller hostage and is killed or injured while police storm the bank to rescue the hostage, is a policeman likely to be indicted? If so, can we ever call on our law enforcement officials for this type of duty?

The Republican Senate passed a bill calling for an appropriation of State money to pay for legal defense fees for law enforcement and corrections officers in connection with the Attica uprising. Unfortunately, the Democrat controlled Ways and Means Committee buried the bill for more than five weeks and never let us have a chance to vote on it before we adjourned on July 12. Now, many of those same Democrats are calling on the Governor to do something for the State Trooper. It is time the people see through this charade.

Assembly Minority Leader Perry S. Dwyer has said that he will press for enactment of a bill in the 1976 Legislature to provide State funds for the legal fees of law enforcement officers accused in connection with the 1971 Attica rebellion. Let those who believe in this speak up. Write to Governor Hugh Carey and Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut and urge them to support Mr. Dwyer's efforts.

If we as a State can provide $750,000 for the legal defense of inmates at Attica, then surely justice requires that we supply legal defense funds for any State officer who requires them as a result of his being at Attica on Sept. 13, 1971, under orders, performing as a State employee. Let's get some action.

Executive vice president and chief executive officer, told some 5,000 member-stockholders and guests that sales totaled $1,980,700,000 for the year ending Jan. 30. Net income after taxes were $17.5 million, an increase of $2.8 million over 1973-74.

Agway Inc., is a farm supply and food marketing cooperative owned by 117,000 member-stockholders and serving agriculture in 12 northeastern states. It was formed in 1964 by the merger of three regional cooperatives,
