FAMILY FEUD

I guess most of you know what it's like to have the television set on at your house and it's always tuned in to a football game, and it's the same thing year after year. Have any of you people stopped to think how many family feuds get started over this annual addiction to the television?

To start, it drives the wives nuts when their husbands give themselves to the T.V. and they can't get them to do anything else. The husbands get jealous when the wives get interested, but only in the super-masculine players. And the kids—they know what time the Flintstones come on and then there's a dumb football game on.

Well, I have to say that I saw one game over Christmas vacation that both parents and kids enjoyed. It was the Rose Bowl Game which featured a parade and was a show everyone must admit they enjoyed.

Have you ever heard people reminiscing about the good of school days? Days when memories were good times at a winning athletic teams, and all the things that should be remembered as "my days in high school." But I wonder how many students at Andover Central School right now and in the next few years can look back and tell their children how things were at school. You could probably start by saying that it was very divided by two "groups" who weren't so drastically different but tried to make themselves out to be. Or you could tell them about all the ridiculous fights and arguments in the locker rooms and hallways, students hassling students but hassling teachers. Then don't forget to tell them of the thefts, acts of vandalism, and general ill-mannerisms that people you called your classmates committed.

Students, look around and realize what you are seeing everyday. There are many good and constructive things you and everyone else can do to make reminiscing the pleasure that it ought to be.

Senior Interview

On November 12, 1960, Mr. Jesse Grossman was pacing up and down the halls of Jones Memorial Hospital waiting to hear the news!!! The Doctor came out of the maternity ward with a grin on his face (who wouldn't have) and said, "Congratulations, Mr. Grossman, it's another boy!"

From that day forward Mr. and Mrs. Grossman have been the proud parents of their fifth son, Brett Jeffrey Grossman.

Brett has four brothers, Jesse, Chad, Marty and Lenny and one sister, Tracy.

In his four years of high school Brett has been very active in sports. He has participated in Cross County for four years; Swimming for four years; Track for four years and Tennis for one year.

Other activities which Brett has supported are: Choir, Library Council, Varsity Club, and the Yearbook Staff of 1977-78.

Brett is planning to go into the Coast Guard after graduation after which he plans to further his education at Alfred Ag-Tech. ACS wishes you many happy years. Good Luck Brett.
