

GOLDIN FOR COMPTROLLER

An Editorial

Harrison Goldin is the only Candidate for State Comptroller that has clearly demonstrated that he can be tight fisted with a buck.

While Ned Regan is a nice appearing young man with a considerable future, he has failed to demonstrate the fiscal austerity that Goldin has.

It was Goldin who forced one Beauocracy in New York City to invest 1.5 Million Dollars it was carrying in a checking account into an interest bearing account.

Goldin was the first to warn people of the financial mess in New York City. Had his early advice been followed, every Municipality in New York State would not have been so badly damaged by increasing the interest rates generated by the New York City fiscal mess.

Here are two other examples of his demonstrated success:

- 1. His audits have resulted in a $50,000,000 savings in the current New York City Budget.
2. His warnings last spring, that $200 Million Dollars in anticipated revenue in New York City's proposed Budget was uncertain, put the City in a position to combat the potential Budget deficits which are looming today.

On the State scene he promises to be just as tight-fisted as Arthur Levitt has been.

That's the reason we endorse Goldin over his opponent who is a fellow Western New Yorker.

Young people in the 136th Assembly District should note that November 16 is the deadline for undergraduate and graduate students who are interested in participating in state government to submit applications for the 1978 Assembly Intern or Graduate Scholar Programs.

Session interns work 30 hours each week from January to mid-May in the office of an Assembly member or for an Assembly Committee or research staff. Up to 10 Graduate Scholars are also selected for full time research assignments from January to August. The interns receive college credit for their work experience.

The November deadline is fast approaching, and I encourage all students who have not applied to the Intern Program to do so.

There are only a limited number of internships available for each legislative session, so, naturally, not everyone who applies will be accepted. However, all will be considered and if you are not successful this year, you might have a chance in the future. It is an extremely valuable learning tool for anyone interested in government, and I am pleased that a number of students and young people from this area have been involved in the legislative process over the years because of these internships and programs.

The State Attorney General's office has begun an effort to crack down on merchants who add a surcharge, usually three or four percent, to the cash price of merchandise when their customers pay by credit card.

While it is legal for merchants to give a discount for payments in cash, the practice of imposing a credit card surcharge violates the Federal Truth in Lending Law according to the Attorney General's Office. A merchant who decides to give a cash discount can avoid the surcharge trap by posting a single price for merchandise and never charging credit card customers more than that posted price.
